Call for Workshops

The AGILE council invites proposals for half or full day workshops that will complement the main conference. All workshops will be held on Tuesday, May 11th, 2010, the day before the conference, at the same place as the main conference.

The workshops should fall within the scope of the AGILE conference. Researchers and practitioners wishing to organize workshops should submit proposals in plain text or PDF format. Proposals should include:

- Workshop name and acronym;
- Description of the workshop topic and goals;
- Short description of the intended length (half or full day) and the format of the workshop;
- Brief statement of the relevance of the workshop to AGILE;
- Names and e-mail addresses of the organizing committee;
- A list of potential program committee members, and journals that might be interested in the topic, if adequate;
- Additional information about previous workshops, if held.

The workshop proposals will be evaluated by the AGILE council. The titles and brief information about accepted workshops will be included in the AGILE 2010 web site, after December 15th, 2009. Links to the call for papers and call for participation will be available afterwards.
